Chapter 274: The Hidden Majesty of the Shadow God's Wings

---

1. The Power of Twelve Wings

Sung Jin-Woo, the Shadow God, was gifted with twelve majestic wings, each representing his divine status, infinite power, and supremacy over the multiverse. These wings glowed with a celestial radiance, a blend of shadowy black and shimmering silver, embodying his duality of darkness and divinity.

2. The Choice to Conceal

Despite his unmatched grandeur, Sung Jin-Woo chose to display only two wings at most:

Simplicity in Power:

Sung Jin-Woo believed that two wings were sufficient to convey his authority and power, even among other divine beings.

His confidence came not from ostentation but from the knowledge that his strength needed no overt display.

Concealment of the Rest:

The remaining ten wings were concealed through his will, rendered completely invisible to the naked eye.

This decision gave him an air of modesty while still maintaining an overwhelming presence.

3. The Perception of Others

For those who had the honor—or misfortune—of witnessing Sung Jin-Woo in person:

A Misleading Appearance:

They saw him as a god with two wings, not realizing the true extent of his majesty.

This often led to underestimations, which could be corrected in an instant if he chose to reveal his full form.

A Symbol of Restraint:

The use of only two wings was interpreted by some as a sign of restraint and humility, adding to the reverence and respect he commanded.

---

4. The Hidden Power

The ten hidden wings were not merely decorative; they carried immense power:

Unleashing the Full Glory:

If Sung Jin-Woo ever chose to reveal all twelve wings, the sheer force of his divine energy would be enough to overwhelm most beings in the multiverse.

The sight of all twelve wings unfurled would signify a moment of absolute dominance, a rare and awe-inspiring event.

A Strategic Choice:

Keeping the wings hidden also served as a strategic advantage, allowing him to surprise adversaries or unleash unexpected power when needed.

---

5. The Shadow God’s Balance

Sung Jin-Woo’s decision to limit his visible wings reflected his character:

Confidence in Subtlety:

He did not need to flaunt his power to prove his worth. His actions and aura spoke louder than any visible symbol of strength.

A Hidden Majesty:

The concealment of his full glory mirrored the depths of his abilities—unseen, immeasurable, and infinitely profound.

---

6. The Potential Revelation

While Sung Jin-Woo preferred to keep his ten wings hidden, the possibility of their revelation remained:

A Final Warning:

For enemies who dared to challenge him, the sight of his twelve wings would mark the end of their defiance.

The unfurling of all twelve wings was not just a display—it was a proclamation of absolute dominance.

This chapter highlighted Sung Jin-Woo’s balance of humility and confidence, showcasing his restraint in revealing his true form while maintaining the unmatched power and authority of the Shadow God.
